

ENGL 5369 Projects

Between Chris Andrews, Kristi Dunks and You

Monica Wesley

June 29 at 12:45pm

Kristi and Chris,

Looks like Dr. Kemp is trying to get the class to distill what the class project would look like before tomorrow night's class. It seems like from the FB entries so far, our classmates are trending towards individual projects which is interesting given the social nature of what we're trying to do. The two of you seemed receptive to some of the original posts that incorporated social media and web 2.0 in the actual process of defining the rhetoric itself and then using the same mixed media approach in presenting it out. I'm still not sure what that would look like, but would either of you be interested in working together on the class project instead of going it solo? Seems to me it would spread the work out and be more inline with the purpose of the class. If you say "no," I so won't be offended but it seems to me Dr. Kemp would embrace some people working together to define this thing, since the interaction itself is so critical to defining a rhetoric of personal agency.

What do you think? And seriously if you want to work by yourself or even with others, but just not me, I'll still talk to you and laugh at your pirate references :)

Kristi Dunks

June 29 at 1:38pm

Hi Monica and Chris,

I responded to your email also, but yes, I am interested in working as a group. I think this is a good idea based on what we are trying to do. I am on call tonight, but assuming all is quiet we could maybe use Skype chat/MOO to discuss what we want to do. I will also be available early tomorrow (between 7–9 MDT) if that works better for a discussion.

Chris Andrews

June 29 at 1:41pm

Just sent an email as well, so you can read my excellently-written response there. We could easily find a quiet corner of the MOO, like the Techno-Rhetorician's Bar & Grill (or whatever it's called). Skype's good too. I can chat pretty much whenever, tonight or in the AM.

Monica Wesley

June 29 at 2:13pm

I won't be available tomorrow morning – a pesky thing called work and all, but I'm available tonight to chat. I'll be home by 5 pm (Mountain time). Do you want to do MOO or Skype? I'm good with either. I couldn't find the bar in the MOO so maybe Chris knows the way and can be our fearless guide. Chris can always sniff out the bar.

Kristi Dunks

June 29 at 2:19pm

I can start at 530 MDT tonight. Just let me know where...

Monica Wesley

June 29 at 2:20pm

5:30 works for me, too. Chris?

Chris Andrews

June 29 at 2:23pm

Har har har. :) You get to the TRB&G through the "Conference Center Lobby"--which is right there as you first log in to the MOO.

Tonight's good. I'm on Central time, and later means fewer distractions, but I'm quite flexible in the end--I'll leave the time up to you two.

Chris Andrews

June 29 at 2:24pm

5:30 it is. I'll see you two tonight. At, er, 6:30.

Monica Wesley

June 29 at 2:26pm

How about we plan for 5:30 pm Mountain time which would be 6:30 pm (?) central time - I always get my time zone changes mixed up. It's what comes from living in a state that didn't honor Daylight Savings Time when I was growing up. And in the MOO bar and grill.

If that time doesn't work, Chris, just say so. See you then!

Kristi Dunks

June 29 at 3:00p

See you then!

Chris Andrews

June 30 at 9:13am

Good to see some others (Julie, Christine) glomming on to the idea as well. Folks that might be good to include, imo.

Monica Wesley

June 30 at 11:10am

I saw that, too. I figure if we don't hear anything from Fred in the next few hours about our proposal, then I'll go ahead and throw it out on the Class Projects discussion board. Unless the two of you object.

Kristi Dunks

June 30 at 11:21am

Yes, might as well. Then people might think about joining us or not before class tonight.